The Reporter, Saturday, February 18, 2017
Vol. XXI No. 1067

Ethiopian
Africa's largest and fastest growing airline, is celebrating its 70th anniversary. The past 40 years have been a great success in the past ten years amidst a challenging business environment in the global aviation industry. News of fuel price hikes or outbreaks of war and epidemics in any part of the world makes Tewelde Gebremariam, Ethiopian Airlines Group CEO, from his sleep in the wee hours of the morning. Tewelde typically works 14 to 15 hours a day, seven days a week. The growing competition from global mega carriers seems to be frustrating the determined CEO. Kabeysus Bekele of The Reporter last week met Tewelde, in his office and discussed the milestones the airline has reached and the daunting task of managing a rapidly growing airline in a turbulent environment. Excerpt:

AfDB grants 159 mln. USD loan to Ethiopian

BY BILAL DERSO

ADDIS ABABA — Ethiopian Airlines received 159 million USD loan from African Development Bank (AfDB) that would be used to finance the airline's expansion plans.

The loan, backed by the African Trade Insurance Agency (ATI), would enable Ethiopian to increase its aircraft number from 80 to 140 within the next decade.

The loan also increases the carrier's financial capacity to drive its expansion program geared towards increasing passenger numbers from the current seven million annually to 18 million by 2025.

The National flag carrier, also the fastest growing airline in sub-Saharan Africa, seeks to double its size by 2025 and increase revenue to 10 billion USD, according to African Business Communities website.

Ethiopian የኢትዮጵያ

The AfDB facility is the first to be covered by the pan-African insurance since ATI signed an agreement with Ethiopia to begin operations in the country last year.

In recent years, Ethiopian Airlines has invested heavily in its fleet expansion and modernization that has enabled it to become the first African carrier to fly both Airbus A350 and Boeing 787 Dreamliner planes. Ethiopian has also plans to invest in a new cargo terminal, a hangar, a headquarters building and expand its aviation academy.

Airlines Shifts Interest to Local Products

Ethiopian Airlines Catering has reached an agreement to work with local producers to procure food products that will minimize the over 100 million Bir cost of imported products. The Airline's catering division imports 90pc of its catering inputs, such as food ingredients, beverages and plastic service items, while only 10pc come from local suppliers.

An official bid was held by the Airline, which was won by 55 local suppliers who will now provide 125 out of 600 inputs that are required by the Airline's catering division.

"We are working with the catering facility to supply 400 to 600 liters of milk per day. We can also supply products like cheese that will further reduce the Airline's import costs," said Hailu Eshetu, operation manager of Family Milk is a local supplier that supplies milk to the Airline.

"Ethiopia's food and beverage industry is progressing on 24 new projects in the industry whose products will contribute to import substitution," said Bekele Mekureya director of the Food, Beverage and Pharmaceutical Industry Development Authority.

Erta Ale Volcano

Erta Ale volcano is a large basaltic shield volcano in the Erta Ale volcanic range in the central northern Danakil depression (NE Ethiopia).

It is famed for its persistent lava lake which has been active during most of the past decades since it was first discovered in the 1960s. Erta Ale is only 613 m high, but as typical for a shield volcano has a very gentle slopes and a large 40 km diameter base. The summit is truncated by a complex, elongated 1700 x 600 m wide caldera which contains vast lava flows and several larger and smaller pit craters, most notably the active north and south crater, which contains the lava lake at present.

Erta Ale is one of the main attractions of the Danakil, and had become a popular tour destination in recent years.

It is notable for holding the longest-existing lava lake, present since the early years of the twentieth century (1906). Volcanoes with lava lakes are very rare: there are only six in the world.

Erta Ale means "Smoking Mountain" in the local Afar language and its southernmost pit is known locally as "the gateway to Hell".
